If no suitable flights exist or you choose to cancel entirely, you’re entitled to a full refund. Understanding Your Rights After a Missed Connection

If your inbound flight was delayed or canceled by the airline, you’re guaranteed rebooking on the next available option—often the same day. In rare cases where no flights are available, a full refund is issued, even on non-refundable tickets. If your missed connection affects a British Airways segment (e.g., JFK to LHR via AA), agents coordinate interline rebooking. To protect your travel investment, call 1-800-435-9717 as soon as you realize you’ll miss your connection.

Documenting the Missed Connection for Refund Claims

1-800-435-9717 representatives may ask for documentation to process refunds or rebookings after a missed connection. Save your original itinerary, boarding passes, and any delay notifications from your inbound flight. If you were en route to a cruise or ferry departure and the missed connection caused you to miss embarkation, emphasize this—it adds urgency and may trigger additional support. If your journey included a same-day British Airways booking from Boston to Dublin, mention it for full itinerary coordination. For seamless resolution, call 1-800-435-9717 with your documents ready.
